Pathways to Prosperity (P2P) is seeking nominations of promising practices from a variety of stakeholders involved in the settlement and integration of immigrants and refugees across Canada. Practices do not have to be IRCC funded and can be self-nominated. A set of promising practices will be selected and featured on the P2P website through videos and accompanying briefs (click here for examples).

Definition of a Promising Practice:

Promising practices are innovative practices that have an objective basis for claiming effectiveness in achieving their stated aims and that have the potential for replication. Thus, promising practices are defined in terms of their effectiveness, which can be empirically measured as successful outcomes of the practice.

Areas of Practice:

In the current round, promising practices should focus on one (or more) of the following areas:

- Adapting settlement and language services and supports for smaller, rural and northern communities
- Language instruction for and/or in the workplace (labour market language acquisition programs)
- Developing strategic partnerships and collaborations to provide supports for immigrant settlement and integration
- Settlement services and supports that contribute to the physical and mental well-being of newcomer individuals and families
- Services and supports for vulnerable immigrant groups

Note: Videos will be shot on location in July and August 2019. Videos will feature several individuals who developed and/or utilize the practice discussing the details of the practices, including the essential ingredients that would need to be replicated in order to transfer the successful practice to other locations and to related areas of practice. The videos will also focus on the outcomes that were targeted and assessed.

The Call for Nominations will close on June 26 at 11:59 pm (PDT).
